CONTEMPORARY EU POLITICS: THE POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Winter 2022/2023

This course combines an introduction to comparative politics of the EU political and economic development, focusing on the period after 1989: the EU enlargement, the EU economic governance and the transformation of party politics.

The aim of this course is to improve the knowledge of students of the contemporary EU politics and policy-decision making, from historical and comparative perspective. Both aspects aims to equip students with knowledge on the functioning of the EU, the rise of the political liberalism and regional economic integration, followed by the rise of populism, technocratic governance and democratic backsliding in the contemporary context.
